

I am alarmed at the thought that one media corporation could own a newspaper and TV station in my area. I live in the Denver metro area, which has strong TV station investigative reporting (Paula Woodward) and strong newspaper investigative reporting (Denver Post). If one company owned by Woodward's TV station and the Post, I think that company would be tempted to consolidate this kind of reporting or even cut it down severely--especially if Woodward or the Post wanted to report on a corporation.
